of the 1913 season. In 1914, Leonard led the American League pitchers in efficiency.

GEORGE LEWIS.

George (Duffy) Lewis, left-fielder of the Red Sox, was born in San Francisco, April 18, 1888. He started his baseball career as a collegian on the Pacific Coast, his first professional engagement being with Alameda, Cal., in 1906. He came to Boston in 1910, and has been a regular almost from his first day. He bats and throws right-handed, and is considered a 300 hitter.

CARL MAYS.

has been a regular almost from his first day. He bats and throws righthanded, and is considered a 300 hitter.

CARL MAYS.

Carl Mays, another member of the Boston pitching staff, was born in Portland, Ore., twenty-three years ago. He came to the Red Sox last year from the Providence club, of the International League. He is a right-hander, and, although a youngster, has convinced Carrigan and others that he is the coming sensation of the league.

George ("Babe") Ruth, twenty-one years old, was born in Baltimore, and first attracted attention as a pitcher for St. Mary's Industrial School, of that city. He was taken under the wing of "Jack" Dunn, then manager of the Orioles, who obtained papers as Ruth's guardian and played the young fellow on the club. Ruth went to the Red Sox in 1914, and was farmed to Providence, but returned last year in time to win enough games for the Red Sox to keep them in the race. Ruth also is a hitter of ability. He is a left-hand boxman, and also has ability in this position.

EVERETT SCOTT.

Everett Scott was born at Bluffton, Ind, twenty-three years ago. He played semiprofessionally until attracted by Boston Scouts in 1912, when he was induced to sign with the majors. He was sent to St. Paul for seasoning, being recalled in 1914. He is not a great hitter, but manages to place a hit into the game when most needed.

ERNEST G. SHORE.

Ernest G. (Long) Shore, twenty-five years of age, learned his pitching feats at Guilford College, of Fayetteville, N. C. John McGraw tried him out in 1912, but Shore, when most needed.

ERNEST G. SHORE.

Ernest G. (Long) Shore, twenty-five years of age, learned his pitching feats at Guilford College, of Fayetteville, N. C. John McGraw tried him out in 1912, but Shore, when released from the New York baseball club to Indianapolis, refused to carry out the plan. The next year McGraw reinstated Shore, who got an engagement with Baltimore, subsequently going to the Boston club. RANDOM MUSINGS OF SPORTS

Search is being made in every city and town in New England for Fred Marshall, captain of the Everett High School eleven, who disappeared Saturday after he had been notified that he would not be permitted to play in a game between his team and that of Colby Academy, at New London, N. H. He was barred from football by the school authorities because he was beind in his studies. Marshall left a note for his mother in which he said: "I have been declared ineligible to play and cannot stay to face the music."

day afternoon. Most of these teams will begin their schedules this week or early next week, and the coaches will do their utmost in an effort to get the men into shape for the initial contests. Thus far, reports have it that McGuire's will be light but fast. Coach Ancarrow is said to be having trouble getting applicants out for the Academy team; but up at Benedictine they are responding in large numbers, and Coach Amos is finding some littely material.
